FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

“GOODY TWO SHOES,” The New Wave in Family Dance Parties, Premieres September 15, 2007 at Crash Mansion

For the parents who’ve lulled their babies to sleep with the Smiths or danced their toddlers around the living room to the Ramones, the ultimate family dance party has arrived!

GOODY TWO SHOES premieres Saturday, September 15, 2007 from 2pm-5pm at Crash Mansion (199 Bowery at Spring Street).

Parents, babies, toddlers and big kids, alike will dance ‘til dusk as DJ’s from Gruv Gallery spin an eclectic, family-friendly mix of new wave, alternative ‘80s, classic punk and ska.

Jenn Cohen-Vigder, a Brooklyn mom of two toddlers and one of the parties’ producers, was inspired by all the ‘80s retro parties happening around the city and wanted a way to join the fun without leaving the kids at home:

“When my daughter turned one we threw her a DJ’d “I Love Rock’n’Roll” party – we even did a mock up of the Joan Jett album cover for the invitation. After the party I kept hearing things like ‘best kids party ever’ and ‘don’t how long it’s been since I danced like that.’ After that I produced a bunch of family dance parties and other family events in Brooklyn, all the while crafting the big idea -- Goody Two Shoes.”

The retro atmosphere will go beyond the music. Toys, projects, activities, and snacks will be reminiscent of the era that started off punk and turned new wave.

A second Goody Two Shoes party is scheduled for Sunday, October 7th at Crash Mansion. Check the website for additional party dates and times.
